The questions posed in the referenced airgram do not apply precisely in Afghanistan. We are not aware of any effort made by the government to place a value on technology transfers. Contributions in kind in the form of machinery, technical assistance, etc., form a part of most investment proposals in Afghanistan, and the value of these contributions is stated by the investor when he submits his proposal to the government. The content of the investment and the valuation of the items in the proposal are then subject to negotiation.
